3-D Space Specs

Hard to believe, but it seems that anaglyph glasses were once sold right along with sunglasses! Though this "3-D SPACE SPECS" display is not dated, I have to guess it's a 1950s remnant: "For viewing 3-D comic books...Jig-Saw Puzzles...Advertising Material in 3-D printing only." Interestingly, the lenses are red and green, green being on the right. The display was made for regular sunglasses, but a SPACE SPECS sticker was attached which proudly announces that 3-D is "for Youngsters from 6-60." ■
